A Letter from Mr. Robert Waxey.

It was an evil day for me, Mr. Rittor, when, following my wife's advice, as is my uniform custom—and allow me to say here that her advice is generally of a very good kind—and upon the spury of the moment, I pe med and sent to you an account of a little conversation we had together one evening in June. On one occasion I remember of her telling me to go down to neighbor Jewet's and say to him she thought the Merrow bows medidated an attack upon his strawberry bed, as she had seen them hanging about the fence near that part of his enclosure, and he had better keep an eye out fer them; but it was so clearly a case of business that was not mine nor her's, that I did not pay any attention to it whatever. Generally, however, from results extending over a period of nearly twenty-five years—careful records of which have been kept—I find it generally safer to follow her advice, especially upon masters of money and business. And in doing what she desired me to do—which I thought a capital idea at the time—I supposed I should be in the line of my daty. But far from if. When I came home from the post office one evening and threw the Fanuse into her lap, I little thought what a storm of indignation and abuse (I had almost said) was awaiting me, "Of course all the neighbors will know it was us," she said. "But wit if they do, my dear," I replied; "the piece contains your sentiments, as old uncle Decker used to say, and you wished me to write them out for the Editor. Besides, I have no doubt they will be a means of doing a great deal of good to the young lady when you called the foolish school girl, and if so you ought to be willing to make some personal sacrifice." Then after reading it through, and having schooled me sate said "in sport of ourse," my wite fell to making downwright sport of me. She has since scarcely called me by my own name once, but into the children are in hearing is respectful enough to address me as "Mr. Waxey." Now this letter I am writing upon my own responsibility, and

Rate of Interest Sanctioned by beginning to realize the magnitude of the evil caused by the use of injurious compounds for the hair, which are prepared and forced nor the nair, which are prepared and forced into market, by men who are not practical physicians, and who may not be aware of the injury they are producing. These preparations have been analyzed by competent chemists, and shown to contain poisonous substances, causing Nervousness, Headache, Paralysis, and often fatal results.

In contrast with such injurious articles, we

In contrast with such injurious articles, we call attention to the Hair Restorer prepared by Dr. R. Greene, Superintendent of the Bos-ton Medical Institute, who has been a successful physician in Boston for more than a quarter of a century. Dr. Greene uses Veg-etable Remedies only, and can assure the pub-lic that this Hair Restorer will do all that is claimed for it, without a possibility of injury.

"I have tested a sample of Dr. Greene's Hair Restorer, and find that no poisonous metals or injurious matters exist in it. C. T. JACKSON, State Assayer." 1500 Million Feet of Pine Timber.
